Water from Winnipeg's new drinking water treatment plant is now flowing to your taps!

Winnipeg's new water treatment plant started up on December 9, 2009. It is 12,000 square metres in size (about the footprint of the MTS Centre). The water passes through six treatment stages, including filtration, ozonation, and two types of disinfection.

Safety Our water is treated and tested with leading-edge technology.

Quality Our water quality is now higher than the drinking water guidelines set out by Health Canada.

Value The cost is about an eighth of a penny per litre to deliver treated water to your tap.
